STUDY ABROAD

WHERE WOULD YOU LIKE YOUR EDUCATION TO TAKE YOU?

Drury University offers a wide variety of study abroad opportunities for all of our students to enjoy. While study abroad is an option for all students, it is a degree requirement for Breech School of Business, Hammons School of Architecture, and Modern European Studies students.

It is recommended that students begin to consider study abroad opportunities when you enter Drury as a freshman. If you start early, you will find the program best suited for you and have time to do the necessary paperwork and planning in advance to ensure a smooth transition.

AIGINA, GREECE

Program Overview

Based on the island of Aigina, Greece, the Drury Center is the flagship program for Drury's extensive Study Abroad offerings. Students will begin their journey with an orientation in Athens before making their way to Aigina. During the semester, students will also have the opportunity to take a variety of field trips to exciting locations in southern and northern Greece as well as other locations in the Mediterranean. In Aigina, classes are held Monday through Thursday, allowing long weekends for exploring and travel. Students will stay in our picturesque apartment located in the center of Aigina and will have access to the state-of-the-art facilities located at the Drury Center. The apartment comes fully furnished and includes access to the central courtyard and private patio or balcony.

Financial Information

Costs associated with the Aigina semester program include: Drury University semester tuition, room and board, program/administration fee, technology fee, passport fee, passport photos fee, health insurance, International Student Identification Card, round-trip airfare and personal expenses. Most scholarships and financial aid apply to this program. To see a detailed list of cost estimates, please visit www.drury.edu/studyabroad.

Courses Offered Each Semester

The Aigina program offers Global Studio, Greek I and II, as well as a variety of other general education requirements. All classes are taught in English.

Requirements

This program is open to all students, regardless of their major and will fulfill the architecture study abroad requirement. It is strongly recommended that students sign up early for this program. Up to 24 students are approved to study in Greece each semester. Students must have a 2.75 GPA or better.

LONDON, ENGLAND

Program Overview

Drury students attending our London program at Regents College remain Drury students while abroad. They are registered at Drury and will pay their fees to Drury. Regents College is set in Regents Park, one of London's most spectacular Royal Parks, which offers sports, recreation, running trails, tennis courts, flower gardens and the London Zoo. At Regents, most classes are held Monday through Thursday allowing long weekends for exploring London and traveling to other destinations in Europe. Students stay in a triple-occupancy dorm room at Regents as they complete the semester program.

Financial Information

Costs associated with the London, England semester program include: Drury University semester tuition, room and board, program/administration fee, technology fee, passport fee, passport photos fee, health insurance, International Student Identification Card, round-trip airfare and personal expenses. Most scholarships and financial aid apply to this program. To see a detailed list of cost estimates, please visit www.drury.edu/studyabroad.

Courses Offered Each Semester

Regents offers many courses similar to those at Drury as well as a variety of unique course offerings. A number of our general education and major/minor program requirements can be met at Regents.

The GPA requirement is 3.0. Students are advised to apply for the year-long or spring semester program during their freshman year since participation is limited to four students for a semester or two students for the academic year.

SHORT-TERM PROGRAMS

Drury offers a wide variety of short-term programs for students to participate in. Typically, these short-term programs will take place during the summer or winter terms. Short-term programs are a great opportunity for all students to experience study abroad and are very popular.

These short-term programs range in length from one to five weeks. Short-term programs are led by Drury faculty and staff members often offering courses that will meet general education requirements. Scholarships and financial aid do not apply to short-term programs, other than the possibility of student loans and limited study abroad scholarships. Short-term programs change from year to year. Check out the current offerings at www.drury.edu/studyabroad.

AFFILIATED PROGRAMS

Drury University provides access to affiliated programs for students interested in studying in a location not offered by our International Programs Office. Drury University scholarships and financial aid do not apply to affiliated programs with the exception of federal loans and grants. Classes completed through an affiliated program are considered transfer credit. Our affiliated programs include:

- American Institute for Foreign Study
- NAC&U Study Abroad Consortium
- International Studies Abroad
- Missouri State University in China Program
- GlobalLinks
- The Institut d'Etudes Francais de Touraine - Tours, France
