

2019-2020 DUAL CREDIT ONLINE COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

Course	Credit Hours	Course Description	COST
ACCT 209: Principles of Accounting	3	THIS CLASS IS CONSIDERED ACCOUNTING II AT THE HIGH SCHOOL LEVEL. To be eligible to enroll: student must have competed Accounting I at the high school level, earning a B or higher in the class. Introduces the student to the role of accounting in a global society. Principles and concepts of financial accounting. Analysis of accounting statements, and accounting cycles and procedures: receivables, inventories and fixed assets. SPRING ONLY	$270.00
BIOL 100: Principals of Biology	3	This course introduces basic scientific terminology, biology, and chemistry. It is designed to prepare students for more rigorous science curriculum. For Drury: this course meets general education requirement for non-science majors. Will not satisfy biology major requirements.	$270.00
BIOL 106: Conservation Theory and Management	3	A study of our natural resources, current status, future prospects, development of the past compared to present practices. A review of outstanding conservationists and their ideas. SPRING ONLY	$270.00
BIOL 130: Introduction to Bio-Medical Sciences	3	This course will teach students the basic biological principles of nutrition, pathophysiology, microbiology, pharmacology, and control of infectious disease as it ... to Bio-Medical Sciences. FALL ONLY	$270.00
BIOL 245: Introduction to Human Nutrition	3	A study of the essential nutrients and their value in the various food groups, their functions in the body, and how to determine the food needs of the individual. SPRING ONLY	$270.00
BIOL 250: Foundations of Medical Terminology	3	This course examines the various aspects of medical terminology including word origins, definitions, spelling, and pronunciation.	$270.00
COMM 211: Presentational Speaking  taught in blended format	3	Principles and practice of effective oral communication. This course focuses on researching, composing and delivering formal and informal presentations. Topics include ethics and public speaking, listening, research, analyzing and adapting to audiences, message construction, outlining, delivery of message, effective use of visual aids and critically evaluating public address. The course emphasizes informative and persuasive speaking. Designed for students who seek speaking and critical thinking skills.	$270.00
CRIM 120: Principles of Criminal Justice	3	A survey course designed to familiarize students with the American system of criminal justice, theories of crime causation, and society's response to crime. The course provides a general overview of the agencies responsible for the administration of justice by examining the	$270.00 history, structure, and functions of law enforcement, the judicial system, and corrections.

CRIM 222: Introduction to Forensic Science	3	This course provides a basic overview of the theoretical frameworks and techniques used in forensic science. The focus will be on the history and development of the field and subfields of forensic science, crime scene analysis, and methodologies utilized for collection and interpretation of crime scene data. SPRING ONLY	$270.00
ENGL 150: Composition	3	Writing course designed to develop students' abilities to write in a variety of modes for a wide range of purposes.	$270.00
ENGL 207: Expository Writing: Art of the Essay.	3	A foundational course for the writing major, Expository Writing provides students with valuable opportunities to write in a wide variety of modes of nonfiction, including narrative essays, film and book reviews, cultural analyses, and journalistic essays. Students read and discuss the work of published nonfiction and participate in workshops where they respond to one another's writing in small groups. The workshop format enables students to respond to issues of form, purpose, voice, and audience. (Meets Creativity Explored) SPRING ONLY Prerequisite: ENGL 150.	$270.00
ENGL 200: Literature Matters.	3	One of three foundational courses for majors and potential majors in English, Literature Matters introduces students to a central set of problems in contemporary literary studies (for example, Identity and Empire, Shakespeare to Ondaatje). The course includes important canonical works as well as neglected or emerging writers. There is a focus on how to read and understand literature; how reading and writing literature influence identity, meaning, and value; and how to develop strategies for reading, discussing, and writing about literary works.	$270.00
ENGL 266: Creative Writing I - Fiction.	3	Students learn techniques for and practice in writing fiction. The course focuses on student workshops. SPRING ONLY. Prerequisite: ENGL 150	$270.00
EXSP 220: Personal Wellness	2	This course introduces students to the key components of wellness. Students will become familiar with testing methods and personal program development for areas such as: aerobic and anaerobic training, stress management and nutrition. Critical thinking about contemporary wellness issues will be discussed.	$180.00
FINC 103: Personal Financial Management	3	This course introduces personal financial management. Topics addressed include managing debt, establishing credit, investing for retirement, insurance and taxes. This class is recommended for 2nd semester soph. with a 3.5 GPA or junior/senior students.	$270.00
GSTU 210: Desktop Applications	3	This course focuses on the use of advanced software application using the latest Microsoft Office software. Students will produce comprehensive, real-[world solution to solve business related problems. Student will utilize Word, Excel PowerPoint application and Internet resource.	$270.00
HIST 101: United States History to 1865	3	A broad survey of the major political and social developments from the time of Columbus to the Civil War.	$270.00
HIST 102: United States 1865 to Present	3	A broad survey of the major political and social developments from the Civil War to the present	$270.00
HIST 107: World History to 1500	3	A survey of world history with a focus on the nature of changes in global frameworks and their societies.	$270.00

HIST 108: World History from 1500	3	A broad survey of world history from 1500 to the present. Exploration of various modern world cultures with a focus on connections and conflicts between them	$270.00
LDST 260: Fundamentals of Leadership I	3	A broad background is essential in today's organizations. This course will look at the following topics: principals of conflict resolution; various leadership theories; styles and philosophies; as well as contemporary motivational methods will be considered. Elements of leadership technology professionals and other specialists will be included. Through class discussion and course materials, students will receive key aspects of generalists' leadership to enable them to grasp and resolve organizational operations leadership.	$270.00
MGMT 103: Business Foundations	3	An introduction to the fundamental concepts and principles of business enterprise and economics. Introduction to the functions of a business organization. Basic research methods, written and oral reports, discussion of current business, and economic developments. Global business awareness.	$270.00
MATH 109: College Algebra	3	A study of functions and graphs, solutions of equations and inequalities and the properties of polynomial, rational, exponential, and logarithmic functions. Prerequisite: One year of high school algebra and one year of high school. This course uses an ONLINE BOOK... Tuition for this class is reduced; Students purchase their book online	$190.00
MATH 110: Trigonometry	3	The study of trigonometric, logarithmic and exponential functions and their applications. Prerequisite: Successful completion of MATH 109 Tuition for this class is reduced. Students purchase their book Online	$190.00
MATH 227: Introduction to Statistics	3	Prerequisite: One year of high school algebra. A course to acquaint the student with the basic ideas and language of statistics including such topics as descriptive statistics; correlation and regression, basic experimental design, elementary probability, binomial and normal distributions, estimation, and tests of hypotheses and analysis of variance. SPRING ONLY. Tuition for this class is reduced. Students purchase their book Online	$190.00
MUSC 115: Introduction to Music	3	An introductory course in the music of our western culture for non-music majors. Learning how to listen to music and acquiring a basic knowledge of the musician's technique and vocabulary.	$270.00
PLSC 101: Government and Politics in the United States.	3	Introduction to the theories, constitutional bases, functions and government structures of the U.S. political system. Emphasis on national politics and linkages with state and local governments with particular emphasis on Missouri, including current issues in domestic and foreign policy. Offered every semester. (Meets Political Science and Economics)	$270.00
PHIL 105: Introduction to Philosophy	3	A comparative and critical study of the major philosophic positions with a view to developing the analytic, synthetic and speculative dimensions of philosophical methods. SPRING ONLY. THIS CLASS IS FOR JUNIOR OR SENIOR LEVEL STUDENT ONLY	$270.00
PSYC 120: Principles of Psychology	3	This is a survey course providing a study of the behavior of living organisms, particularly human behavior. Typical problems are methods and measurement in psychology, theoretical systems, learning, motivation, perception, personality and psychopathology. (Meets Human Behavior)	$270.00

PSYC 230: Life Span Development.	3	Study of the major theories of and influences on human development from conception through death, including the biological, cognitive, linguistic, emotional, social and cultural dimensions of development. Special emphasis on change processes. SPRING ONLY. Prerequisite: PSYC 120	$270.00
RELG: 109 Introduction to the Study of Religion.	3	Religion and religious ideas are central to all cultures and societies, including our own. This course will look at the broad range of cultural forms we have come to call religion, examine how these forms shape cultures and societies, and finally, by examining what these forms have in common and how they differ, we will determine what it is we study when we study religion. FALL ONLY	$270.00
SOCI 120: Principles of Sociology	3	An analysis of factors that are significant in the development of people as social beings. Consideration is given to the social group and culture as factors in this process.	$270.00