

HSA Statement on Diversity Recruiting

Student recruiting and admissions at Drury University are overseen by the university's Office of Admission, which documents admissions processes on its website.

In the interest of recruiting a diverse student body, admissions staff meet with students at schools with minority-majority populations and create special campus visit opportunities for interested students. The university also provides significant scholarship opportunities for minority applicants, including through the Breakthrough Scholarship.

Application to Drury University is also test-optional. Although this is not explicitly or solely intended to increase student diversity, our test-optional approach is seen as an important tool in our efforts to increase student diversity.
