

HAMMONS
SCHOOL
— OF ARCHITECTURE

Creation, comprising the activities of ideation and making, is fundamental to architectural practice, broadly defined. Our discipline involves generation: the production of spaces that shape human experience, culture, and identity. It also involves re-generation: the adaptation, preservation, and revitalization of existing structures and environments in response to changing needs and conditions.

To address the innovative and reflective processes that are simultaneously inherent in this work, RE/GENERATE features speakers whose creative practices encompass a combination of research, critique, experimentation, and provocation, orienting us to the possibilities of what has been and what could be.

The 2025-26 HSA Lecture Series is made possible by the support of major underwriters J. Price Architecture. Generous support is also provided by AIA Springfield.
