

Master of Health Administration Curriculum Map 2025

The Master of Health Administration is designed to give students both theoretical and practical experience in healthcare leadership. The field of healthcare is diverse and changing rapidly. The program provides the essential foundation for the next generation of health system leaders. Utilizing a comprehensive structure, key aspects within modern healthcare will be covered. The course content is intentionally broad to include hospital, ambulatory, behavioral health, and community health systems. The interdisciplinary approach fosters collaboration and understanding for a wide variety of student backgrounds and experiences.

Program Learning Outcomes:

PLO1: Leadership: Demonstrate the abilities and behaviors that are characteristic of health care leaders. Establishing a vision, inspiring others to work toward that vision and supporting others to achieve the shared vision.

PLO2: Critical Thinking: Translate the results of complex analysis into information that identifies potential issues and opportunities.

PLO3: Strategic Planning: Apply appropriate models and methods to analyze issues from a system perspective to advance defined visions and goals.

PLO4: Professionalism and Ethics: Identify ethical concerns in health care leadership cases and apply appropriate frameworks and principles.

PLO5: Communication: Demonstrate formal and informal communication using traditional and contemporary modalities to convey messages that are clear and concise to target audiences.
